				Giovanni Bellini was the leading artist of the early Renaissance in Venice and the master of the largest workshop of any painter in Italy. This installation of three paintings from the IMA s collection focuses on the practice of painting in Bellini s workshop, with particular emphasis on how images of the Madonna and Child were created and copied to meet the needs of private devotion.
				Making extensive use of technical documents such as X-radiographs, infrared reflectograms, and paint cross sections, it introduces visitors to the materials and working methods of the Renaissance painter and to modern	³ scientific methods used to study artistic practices. An interactive Web site in the gallery provides more comprehensive information and documents the conservation treatment of one of Bellini s Madonnas.
				This installation is accompanied by a scholarly publication, Giovanni Bellini and the Art of Devotion, edited by IMA curator Ronda Kasl. Funding is provided by the Samuel H.

					Stauffenberg create multi-media environments out of found text, film, and objects-including elements of prior artworks "remixed" in new formats. The artists have worked together since 1989, adopting the name RothStauffenberg in the year 2000.
					In this exhibition, RothStauffenberg adapted a number of existing pieces particularly for the Indianapolis Museum of Art. The four artworks in the Off the Wall Gallery illustrate the artists' idea of "in-between" time. Their Timecoded Wallpaper (1995-2006) is accompanied by a series of works called Pacific Ocean, 1969 (2000), all of which are based on airplane "black box" recordings. Cockpit voice recorders perpetually record sound, erasing older material in the process. The artists look to this device as one that simultaneously documents and erases immediate histories.	• In the Carmen & Mark Holeman Video Gallery adjacent to the balcony hall, RothStauffenberg's open-narrative collage, Schall und Rauch ("Smoke and Mirrors," 2004-2006) is also on view. The German expression Schall und Rauch means "hollow words." This installation incorporates simple, sometimes arbitrary, found materials, creating an environment of experiences that range in tone from poignant to disturbing to preposterous. The piece includes a multiple-part film (taken from found film footage) that then extends into the three-dimensional Omer Fast s Godville is a two-channel video installation based on interviews with 18th-century character interpreters in Colonial Williamsburg, a living-history museum in Virginia that integrates historical reenactments of colonial American life into the public sphere of the town, on the sites of historic buildings original to the early colonial capital. Ten actors were interviewed for this project. These individuals appear in their period attire and speak, both in historical character and as modern-day citizens of contemporary America. The cross-section of personas and historical contexts is complicated by rapid lediting that produces a new narrative, with blurred temporal markers. The artist intends for his video installation to tell the story of a town whose residents are unmoored and floating somewhere in America, tethered neither to past or present, living in between reenactment,

					All Dressed Up features more than 30 recent additions to the collection, including extraordinary garments by revered European couturiers Chanel, Balenciaga, Givenchy and Lanvin that will be displayed for the first time. American fashion designers — including Indiana's own Norman Norell and Halston — will also be represented. Other objects featured will include three paper dresses representing the "throwaway culture" of the 1960s, and whimsical, surrealistic Bes-Ben hats created by "Chicago's Mad Hatter" Benjamin Green-Field. The highlight of the exhibition is an 1880s Imperial Russian court dress, created by Charles Fredrick Worth, which belonged to Maria Maximilianova Romanovska, a greatgranddaughter of the French Empress Josephine and granddaughter of Class Pictures includes 40 photographic portraits of high school students paired with their own written words. For the exhibition, Bey photographed young people from all parts of the economic, racial, and ethnic spectrum in both public and private high schools in Detroit; Lawrence and Andover, Massachusetts; Orlando; San Francisco; and New York City. The statements that are displayed alongside the portraits were written by the students and edited by Bey.

					Many of the statements are touching, funny, or harrowing, deepening our appreciation for young adults facing the challenges of the 21st century. Bey searlier work includes Harlem and Brooklyn portrait series. The Featuring a full range of objects in use at the imperial court of the Ming dynasty, this exhibition is being organized by the Asian Art Museum of San Francisco in association with the Palace Museum, Beijing; the Nanjing Municipal Museum; and the Shanghai Museum. It is the first major exhibition to focus solely on the court arts of the Ming dynasty. Some of the objects in the exhibition are from newly excavated tombs of individuals related to the Ming court and have never been shown before outside of China. The exhibition is comprised of more than 200 items that include paintings; gold and jade; textiles; jewelry; architectural and funereal objects; carvings and lacquer pieces; porcelains; and enamel and metal work. After opening at the Asian Art Museum in San Francisco, the beautiful, specific objects, New York-based artist Orly Genger will hand crochet her largest, most ambitious work to date, piling more than 600,000 feet of brown painted rope into an enormous organic mound entitled, Come, that will measure approximately 35x20 feet. According to Genger, the nearly six ton sculpture will be "confrontational and persistent," a simple, but powerful flood of biomorphic form that will cascade from the ceiling, and converge to form a cavernous opening at ground level, where one visitor at a time will be able to explore the sculpture's isolated interior. Genger says the sculpture, which harkens back to objects fabricated during the feminist and postminimal art movements, will "dwarf not only the people who walk beside it but the entire space." Born in 1979 in New York City, Genger received her BA from Brown University in 2001, and graduated from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago in 2002. She has exhibited at the Aldrich Contemporary Art Museum, CT,

					This exhibition, drawn entirely from the IMA's extensive Fashion Arts Collection, brings together 25 examples of fashion that feature flower motifs. For centuries, delicate forms and rich colors of flowers have captivated artists and designers alike. Using roses, poppies, petunias, peonies, chrysanthemums and wildflowers, artists gave life to the simplest of silhouettes. The floral patterns on these garments were executed in a range of techniques including printing, embroidery, beading and brocading.
					Among the designers whose work will be exhibited are Norman Norell, Bill Blass, Givenchy, Galanos, Trigere and Callot Soeurs. Fashion in Bloom offers an in-depth look at the major styles of Western fashion, by providing a framework of significant shifts in silhouettes of feminine

His method includes the use of shellac, torn and crumpled papers, dyes and other materials in conjunction with wood blocks to create low reliefs and complex surface textures. A notable feature of his work is his subtle color harmonies at times combined with strikingly contrasting colors to create a luminescent glow to his works. 					Judith G. Levy's art deals with themes of memory, exploring the fleeting nature of individual experience, the similarities and differences between collective and personal acts of remembering, and how memories can be explicit or elusive. The installation will be comprised of a monumental "cloud" made from white plastic photo viewers that hang on strands of microfilament. The viewers are designed to be held up to the light to reveal an image inside. Each of the plastic viewers will contain a unique photograph, drawn from a collection of thousands of found 35mm slides that the artist has collected over the years throughout the Midwest. These photographs capture	2 people posing for family snapshots, attending holiday events, working, enjoying vacations, or simply observing the world around them. In some areas, these viewers will be hung out of reach - suggesting a metaphor for experiences or memories that can not be retrieved - while in other areas they will be hung at a height that is accessible to visitors so that they can have the personal experience of peering through the viewers at these familiar yet mysterious images.

While photographers have been chronicling the visible world for 159 years, their varying approaches to similar subjects underscore the creativity and flexibility of the medium of photography. This notion will manifest itself by the pairing of twenty sets of European and American photographs selected from the permanent collection. The themes of architecture, landscape, portraiture, the figure, war, protest, abstraction and the passing crowd will be explored through the pairings of Carleton Watkins and Ansel Adams, Edward Weston and Harry Callahan, Peter Henry Emerson and Lois Conner, Lewis Hine and Lisette Model, Walker Evans and Berenice Abbott, Alfred Stieglitz and W. 		, , , ,			This exhibition will examine two decades of design from some fourteen countries across Western Europe. Organized as an international undertaking by the Indianapolis Museum of Art in conjunction with Denver Art Museum and Kingston University, London, the project constitutes the first encompassing and critical assessment of the most creative aspects of contemporary Western European design from 1985 to 2005. Rather than focusing on individual countries or artists, European Design will define the larger aesthetic movements that have transcended national boundaries and will elucidate the quintessential objects and major designers of these decades. The project will be organized around two major concepts which characterize design in these decades Modernism (i.e. industrial design) and Postmodernism (i.e. decorative design) within which there will be a number of sub-themes. Two generations of designers will be featured ranging from Ron Arad, Jasper Morrison, and New York-based artist Josephine Meckseper is widely acclaimed for her thought-provoking works executed in a range of media that engage with questions about the role of consumerism and political engagement in contemporary society.	'

					The videos in this exhibition, 0% Down (2008) and Mall of America (2009), crystallize many of the core issues that Meckseper has explored through her works in other media, using imagery appropriated from advertising and documentary footage of a shopping mall to create aesthetically seductive yet challenging works. Alternately displayed on opposite walls of the video gallery, this pair of works is visually stimulating in the contrasting visual strategies represented - one work filmed black-and-white with intense sound, the other drenched in vivid colors with a haunting ambient soundtrack - and presents a dynamic dialogue about the connections between politics and "The Viewing Project" is a three-year series of small-scale installations designed to offer visitors creative and enjoyable experiences with objects from the IMA's permanent collection. Although themes vary, the main goals of all Viewing Project installations remain constant: to encourage active looking, to support visitor creativity and engagement, and to present objects from the

EX2009.3	Completed	Indiana Artists' Club Annual Juried Exhibition	2009-04-18	2009-05-31	The Indiana Artists' Club, Inc. was organized as the Indiana Art Club in 1917 by a group of 46 artists and patrons including such notables as T. C. Steele, William Forsyth, Otto Stark, Carl Graf, Wayman Adams, Simon Baus, Marie Goth, Frederick Polley, Clifton Wheeler, Randolph Coats, Carl Lieber and Alex Holiday. For its 77th Annual Juried Exhibition, 51 works of art in all media were selected by juror Carla O'Connor of Seattle, WA. In addition to presenting this exhibition which has been held at the IMA since 1992 the organization has originated cultural and educational projects which have included fine arts in high schools, donations of art books to colleges, and preservation of the T. C. Steele Memorial as well as murals at Wishard Hospital. EX2009.6	Completed	Sacred Spain: Art and Belief in the Spanish World	2009-10-11		This exhibition will explore the exaggerated aesthetic and expressive means employed by 17th-century Spanish artists to convey religious experience. The objects chosen for the exhibition were created explicitly to arouse wonder, devotion, and identification, resulting in art of enormous power and originality. Sacred Spain will include works of art in all media, including paintings by well-known artists such as El Greco, Velázquez, Zurbarán and Murillo, as well as less well-known masterpieces of polychrome sculpture, liturgical silver, embroidered vestments and illuminated manuscripts. It will also include works from colonial Spanish America and the Philippines.		Ronda Kasl	2009.377	Crucifix	[2009.377] "Crucifix", Carreño de Miranda, Juan

The exhibition will be located in the Maryann and Gene Zink Gallery (H122C), the Patrick O'Reilly & Elizabeth Fortune Gallery (H122E) and the Ann & David Knall Treasury (H122D). For this exhibition, forty-eight works have been selected from the recent major acquisition of 240 photographs by Arthur Fellig (1899-1968), the father of New York street photography who was better known as Weegee the Famous. The exhibition will follow his career from 1931 to 1965, when he mixed with the crowds and chronicled their daily dramas. The Watercolor Society of Indiana is made up of more than 300 artist, student, and patron members statewide who produce high quality watercolor paintings and seek to educate the public about the beautiful transparent medium. Organized by the Museum of Arts and Design, "Read My Pins: The Madeleine Albright Collection" highlights over 200 pins from the unique collection of the former Secretary of State. The Madeleine Albright collection includes pins of every description, many with fascinating stories attached. Some of the pieces are associated with important world events, others were gifts from international leaders or valued friends. A select number of the pins are fine antiques, most are costume jewelry, chosen for the symbolic messages they might convey. As the fame of Albright's pins has grown, so has their variety and number. Distinctive as it is democratic, this often whimsical collection spans more than a century of jewelry design and includes pieces from across the globe. 					Taking Bruce Nauman's "Dance or Exercise on the Perimeter of a Square" (1967-68) and Richard Serra's "Frame" (1969) as points of departure, this exhibition brings together for the first time recent video work that documents artists' bodily confrontation with the frame of the camera and boundaries delimited within. Through a variety of movements, procedures, and performances, the artists in "Framed" investigate the space between self and environment, self and other, and the divide between what is recorded by a camera and the indefinite expanse of unmediated life. Each video depicts the artist as he or she marks, follows, or grapples with a boundary and thereby maps the space of a now-expanded studio, still encompassing the familiar territory of four-walled artist's studio, but also stretching into the street, city, and wider surroundings.
					Surroundings.
					"Framed" features Serra and Nauman's seminal films along with recent works by Kate Gilmore, Sigalit Landau, Lilly McElroy, Robin Rhode, Melanie Schiff, and Type A. The exhibition will be presented in the McCormack Forefront Tanaka Ryohei (b. 1933) has established himself as Japan's foremost etcher. His works combine an immaculate eye for form with intense concentration on visual detail. Tanaka never fails to capture and convey the material quality and texture of his subject matter, whether it is the rough and cracked bark of a pine tree or the graininess of a wooden board. Rich, velvety ink tones, stark whites, deep blackssometimes accompanied by vivid touches of colorcombine to make images that Through vigorous, often poetic interventions into natural and man-made environments, Brooklyn-based artist William Lamson (b. 1977) forges a captivating and highly inventive exploration of forces of nature and the passage of time. As part of the IMA's Efroymson Family Entrance Pavilion series, Lamson has created his largest and most ambitious work to datea monumental sculpture and sound installation that reanimates a former communications tower by transforming it into a sound-producing, resonant object. The tower has been compressed into the space, as if it has been folded into itself, and used as an antenna to receive a weather radio signal from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The signal will initiate a series of vibrations	5

					54th International Art Exhibition of the Venice Biennale this summer, this exhibition features works on paper by American artists who traveled to Venice in the late 19th and early-20th centuries. Venetian Views presents 28 watercolors, drawings, and etchings selected from the IMA s rich holdings in this area. Among the artists are expatriates John Singer Sargent and James McNeill Whistler as well as Robert Frederick Blum and Frank Duveneck. I addition to exploring the American fascination with the Italian Grand Tour and the glories of Venice, the exhibition will address the role of Venetian subjects in each artist s larger body of work. Venetian Views explores a critical chapter of Americ artists enduring Brian McCutcheon is an Indianapolis-based conceptual artist who works with a variety of mediums, including drawing, sculpture, video, and photography. This exhibition is McCutcheon's first major solo exhibition, and features a new group of works specially commissioned by the IMA. The show will include three-dimensional renderings and objects that explore themes relative to the Apollo Missions to the Moon and how those events articulated American ideas of masculinity. The flights to the moon represent an extreme form of human imagination and will - and an extraordinary leap of risk and faith. McCutcheon's works will reflect upon how the objects that we associate with these events are peculiarly modern yet nostalgic, highly technological yet fantastical.

					The exhibition will explore how this duality runs parallel to the man/boy conflict that exists in every father and son.
					The experience of the museum exhibition will be constructed to mimic a children's book narrative, beginning with a transformation of the real (a self-portrait of the artist as his son - a child/man) and an imaginative play with common things (a balloon chair). As one moves through the exhibition, it will evolve as an imaginative narrative related to the Apollo missions, including the launch, space travel, and lunar landing, before arriving at important addition to its Pont-Aven School collection, a complete set of Paul Gauguin's famed Volpini prints. The portfolio of 11 zincographs printed on canary yellow paper was nicknamed "Volpini" after the owner of the Café des Arts in Paris, where the prints were presented during the summer of 1889. The occasion marked the first time that the Pont-Aven School paintings and prints of Gauguin and his colleagues were publicly exhibited. The Volpini Suite one of the most important printmaking projects of 19th-century France, was Gauguin's first attempt at printmaking, and the prints reveal his rapid mastery of graphic techniques. The zincographs were created at a pivotal point in Gauguin's career, just a few months after The invention of the handheld Kodak camera in 1888 expanded the practice of photography to the general public. Artists were not immune to its allure, and during the 1890s several Post-Impressionists made intriguing photographic experiments that recorded their daily lives and related directly to how they composed their oil paintings and works on paper. Featured artists include some of the finest interpreters of the new "snapshot" medium, such as Pierre Bonnard, Maurice Denis, Félix Vallotton, Edouard Vuillard, all members of the Nabi group	n. as well as Dutch artist Georg Breitner and the Belgian Henri Evenepoel. Their photographs, largely unknown, wil	ı be displayed alongside their paintings and prints, offering new insights into the works for which they are renowned.

					The exhibition features approximately 200 photographs, 40 paintings and 60 works on paper, including interiors, urban scenes and portraiture. Exhibition curators are Elizabeth Easton, director of the Center for Curatorial Leadership; Eliza Rathbone, chief curator, The Phillips Collection, Washington, D.C., and Ellen Lee, Wood-Pulliam Senior Curator, Indianapolis Museum of Art. "Bonnard to woodblock printmaking in the U.S. American artists abroad, who had made a specialty of printmaking, repatriated at the outset of World War I in August 1914, and congregated the following summer in the Cape Cod fishing village and summer art colony of Provincetown. A group of six artists wintered in Provincetown and invented a new form of color woodblock print made from a single block, which came to be known as the white-line woodcut, or the Provincetown print. For the next forty years, Provincetown was the center for the perpetuation of the craft of woodblock printmaking and for a modernist bent that was inherent in the original Provincetown prints.

					Alyson Shotz creates sculptures and installations that explore basic elements of the physical world light, gravity and space through the use of commonplace and industrial materials such as piano wire, glass beads, straight pins and mirrors. For the IMAÂ Efroymson Family Entrance Pavilion series, Shotz will adapt her sculpture "Geometry of Light" and display it in conjunction with her animation "Fluid State" and a series of large-scale stills captured from the animation. "Geometry of Light" explores the question:" What would it look like to see light stopped in time?" and is composed of plastic Fresnel lenses that Shotz has strung on stainless steel wire and interspersed with silvered glass beads. The sculpture will attach to the glass-paneled walls of the Pavilion with suction cups and extend across the space, allowing natural light will filter through the lenses at varying angles and Urban Vision: American Works on Paper, 1900 - 1950 will explore artistic interpretations of the city. As city dwellers learned to negotiate their way through a rapidly changing environment, the spectacle of metropolitan life became an important focus for artists in the early 20th century. Images of the construction of the massive skyscrapers that came to define New York and Chicago will be juxtaposed against scenes expressive of the human face of these urban spaces. The exhibit will bring together 25 etchings, lithographs and engravings from the IMA s print collection by such well-known artists as George Bellows, Childe Hassam, Edward Hopper, Reginald Marsh and Isabel Bishop. Also presented will be the work of lesser known, but equally significant artists, such as Gerald Kenneth Geerlings, Charles Locke Wheeler, and Martin

EX2012.23	Completed	Musha-e: Japanese Warrior Prints	2012-07-27 2013-01	This exhibition features examples of the ukiyo-e genre called "musha-e," or "warrior prints," which depicted armored samurai in battle scenes and other historical or legendary settings. Popular literature and theater contributed to the blending of fact and fiction in these prints, creating fantastic figures much larger than life. The exhibition includes works by such popular artists as Hokusai, Toyokuni I, Kunisada (Toyokuni III), Koryusai and Shunzan in a variety of formats that include book illustrations, pillar prints and triptychs in addition to the standard size ("oban") woodblock print. It was really Utagawa Kuniyoshi, however, who brought the genre to its pinnacle of popularityas indicated by his nickname, musha-e no Kuniyoshi, or "Kuniyoshi of the Warrior Prints." Four works by Kuniyoshi and one by his student Yoshitora are in the exhibition. The power and visual strength of the imagery combined with tales of honor and heroism were highly popular among the people of the Edo period. We hope this exhibition will allow our visitors to share in that enjoyment. 					"Impressed: Modern Japanese Prints" includes Sosaku hanga from Japanese printmakers Tajima Hiroyuki, Iwami Reika, Saito Kiyoshi, and Maki Haku. Sosaku hanga, or "creative prints", were born from an art movement in early	1 20th-century Japan. Whereas traditional Japanese woodblock prints were collaboratively produced by a team of skilled artisans directed by a publisher, the sosaku hanga movement advocated that a single artist controlled every aspect of the creation of a work. In sosaku hanga, the artist designed, self-carved, and self-printed their creations. The works in the exhibition all share the impression of having highly textured surfaces. The results are remarkably individual and stress the importance of the Brooklyn-based artist Spencer Finch, creates mixed-media installations, photographs, and drawings that explore the limits of perception. Bringing together a scientific approach and a nuanced sense of poetics, Finch s works call attention to various phenomena of the natural world through his investigations of light and color. Finch will create Following Nature, a new installation for the IMA s Efroymson Family Entrance Pavilion that looks to the EX2013.7	Completed	ed Indiana by the Numbers	2013-05-24		Commissioned in 1980 for the twentieth anniversary of Melvin Simon & Associates, Robert Indiana s eight-foot tall polychrome Numbers remain icons created by one of America s most recognizable artists. This exhibition traces the history of their design and fabrication, tells the story of their display in Indianapolis and beyond before they were donated to the IMA in 1989, and provides a glimpse into their recent restoration and re-painting by the IMA conservation department. 					"Timeless" can refer to something that is not restricted to a particular time period or age. It also describes things that are enduring, ageless, and unaffected by time. Using prints from the last three decades of the 18c down to modern times, spanning the Edo (1600 1868), Meiji (1868 1912), Taisho (1912 1926) and Showa (1926 1989) eras, this exhibition looks at the genre called "bijinga," or pictures of female beauties, from both vantage points. On one hand it allows one to compare which aspects artists from different periods seized upon as markers of feminine grace and attractiveness. On the other, it includes prints that have been damaged over time but that still retain appreciable elements of beauty. Although it might take work on the part of the viewer to

Born and raised in Indiana, Onya La Tour (1896 1976) worked for the WPA in New York during the 1930s and befriended many of the artists whose work she would collect and display in her own gallery. When La Tour moved back to Indiana in 1940, she made her unusual collection available to the public free of charge in her Brown County farmhouse, which she called the Indiana Museum for Modern Art. In 1972, La Tour donated much of her collection, featuring figurative and abstract styles, to the IMA. This exhibition marks the first time many of her paintings, drawings, and prin have been displayed since their days in Brown County. The Indiana University Art Museum is also lending four works from La Tour s collection.		S5552.84.1		[SSSS2.84.1] "nat", Schiaparelli, Elsa

EX2014.11	Completed	The Onya La Tour Collection: Modernism in Indiana	2014-10-17	Modernism in Indiana will highlight the early Modernist movement in America. Born and raised in Indiana, Onya La Tour (1896 1976) worked for the WPA in New York during the 1930s and befriended many of the artists whose work she would collect and display in her own gallery. When La Tour moved back to Indiana in 1940, she made her unusual collection available to the public free of charge in her Brown County farmhouse, which she called the Indiana Museum for Modern Art. In 1972, La Tour donated much of her collection, featuring figurative and abstract styles, to the IMA. 					Bill Viola: Capturing Spectacle and Passion will feature two works by this video artists. Projected on the front and back of a large, double-sided screen in the IMA s McCormack Forefront Galleries, The Crossing (1996) presents a human figure as it is besieged by water on one side and fire on the other. These scenes with accompanying audio reveal the gradual, yet total destruction caused by natural and opposing forces of nature. Also on view with The Crossing will be Viola's 2000 video, The Quintet of the Silent. Working with video since the early 1970s, Bill Viola is a pioneer of the medium and internationally known for works that explore experiences of physical and spiritual transformation-birth, death, waking, dreaming,

					The avant garde of French art made inroads into the American mainstream in the first decades of the 20th century largely through the efforts of photographer Alfred Stieglitz. Stieglitz s 291 Gallery, founded in 1908, introduced the works of Henri Matisse Pablo Picasso and Paul Cezanne as well as such young Americans as Marsder Hartley, John Marin, Charles Sheeler, Katherine Dreier and Man Ray. Dreier, Marcel Duchamp and Ray founded the Société Anonyme in 1920 to foster the Modernist movement. These and other artists are featured in this exhibition of 29 prints, drawings, watercolors and photographs from the IMA s permanent collection. Shown for the first time together, the works in Fabled Kings represent the vivid and varied tradition of Indian narrative painting. Rotation begins on 3/10/2014. The ancient land and rich cultural traditions of the Southwest region of the United States fueled the imaginations of early 20th century artists like Georgia O'Keeffe. The evocative still life paintings produced by these artists helped attract audiences to visit the Southwest and, still today, provide a fascinating example of art s capacity to document the essence of a place and time. Georgia O Keeffe and the Southwestern Still Life tells the story of the Southwest as seen through the eyes of the artis who lived there. Focusing on still lifes representations of an object or groups of objects the exhibition features more than 50 works that provide fascinating examples of art s capacity to capture the essence of a particular place. 	Completed Fabled Kings	and the Southwestern Still Life		2015-01-04	from a Panchatantra series painted at Udaipur, on loan from a private collection. The Panchatantra is based on an ancient Indian oral tradition that uses tales to teach life lessons. They are often illustrated by anthropomorphized animals, similar to Aesop s Fables. 					Georges Seurat (1859-1891), has long been synonymous with landscapes, seascapes and scenes of urban life.
					However, its renowned dotted technique and use of color theory also produced portraits of unusual beauty and perception. This international exhibition, the first to focus on the portrait, will explore the facets, character and context of Neo-Impressionist likenesses. Featuring works by French artists such as Seurat, Signac, Cross and Luce, as well as several Belgian Neo-Impressionists who specialized in portraiture, the exhibition will include 70 to 75 paintings and 10 to 15 works on paper from several European and American museums and private collections. Many of the era's most interesting figures will be represented.
					Organized by the Indianapolis Museum of Art, the exhibition will travel to Indianapolis and two other museums between fall 2010 and summer 2011. Exhibition curators are Dr. Jane Block, Turyn Professor at the has led artists to reflect on its presence and significance in society. From paintings to sculptures to prints and photographs, a number of works in the IMA s collection depict automobiles and/or th architectural structures that accommodate them in our environment (bridges, gas stations, highways, diners etc.). Still other artists create abstract compositions that focus on particular aspects of the unique forms, or features, of automobiles. 				During the 19th century, American designers and craftsmen and -women produced silver that was the envy of customers and critics around the world. While the IMA currently holds very few significant examples of American silver, several private collectors are in discussion with the museum to lend and potentially donate major examples of American silver to the IMA s permanent collection.

				Combining exceptional works from the three private collections (two from Indianapolis and one from Seattle) and the few strong pieces from the IMA, American Silver, 1850-1930 will trace the development of American silver over eight decades. The show would start with silver in the gothic revival and naturalistic styles created in relatively small silversmith shops in the 1850s and end with pieces made in the art deco taste of the 1920s by huge companies. Along with design history, fine examples of silver in a wide variety of styles will illustrate changes in etiquette, dining history, the role of women, and manufacturing over eighty years.					[TD11922/10] "Turkick!#!" C

EX2015.9	Completed Erwin Wurm: Euclidean Exercises	Become a work of art for one minute! Internationally recognized Austrian artist Erwin Wurm challenges the traditional notion of sculpture as static and unchanging. With his irreverent One Minute Sculptures presented at the IMA, Wurm invites you to complete his artworks. On empty platforms, the artist provides instructional drawing along with props to be used in different poses. Each of these One Minute Sculptures, as enacted by a different visitor, becomes an entirely unique and fleeting portrait of the individual holding a specific pose. Some of the One Minute Sculptures presented will be from a new series called Euclidean Exercises, inspired by Euclid, the revered mathematician from Greco-Roman antiquity considered the father of geometry. In other locations throughout the IMA, such as the Clowe Pavilion and various galleries, visitors will encounter other works by Wurm including photos, video as well as "static' sculptures. By experiencing Wurm s contemporary work in selected historical galleries, viewers are reminded that all art was once contemporary. The purpose of the Indiana Artists Club is to hold statewide exhibitions and demonstrations as well as provide social interaction among its members. A board of directors, elected yearly, leads the organization. The Indiana Artists Club has shown annual exhibits since its inception and since 1992 has held the Annual Juried	gs, of m es r cs Efroymson	Tricia Paik	2015.16 2015.17A-F		[2015.16] "One Minute Forever (Yogurt Cup)", Wurm, Erwin [2015.17A-F] "One Minute Sculpture: Theory of Painting", Wurm, Erwin plastic outdoor toys on the Lilly House Lawn. The tree will be lit from inside at night and provide a destination experience during the months of November and December 2016. When the piece is dismantled the toys will be donated to needy families. This installation has previously been installed at the IMA from October 2015-January 2016. The installation consists of 12 lower sections and 6 upper sections of a steel armature that—when assembled—forms an inverted cone shape or "tree." The overall structure will be 50' in height x 20' in diameter. Electrical power is required to light the piece from within. Artist provides all Compact			This exhibition celebrates the legacy of Marie Daugherty Webster (1859 1956), who is considered one of the leading designers in the history of early 20th-century quilt making. Born and raised in Indiana, Webster designed and made her first appliquéd qui in 1909. In the following years, her quilts were featured in Ladies Home Journal, which brought her international fame and recognition. The exhibition will consist of 25 appliquéd quilts designed and made by Marie Webster and dating from 1909-1930. 13		The second control of

					In 2016, Indianapolis will celebrate not only the bicentennial but also the 70th anniversary of the death of native son Booth Tarkington. A former trustee of the John Herron Art Museum and a dedicated art collector, Tarkington and, later, his widow were important benefactors of the IMA, donating such major works at the Mainardi altarpiece and contributing funds toward the acquisition of Hitchcock s Calypso. This small exhibition of portraits will focus on Tarkington s interest in the human face, a subject he wrote about extensively. Appropriate for the Alliance Gallery in conjunction with the bicentennial celebrations, the show will feature the writer s published and unpublished commentary on his collection as found in his correspondence with artists,

					A juried exhibition of approximately 30 small scale contemporary quilts made in response to Marie Webster quilts will be on displayed from June 23 to September, 2016. This exhibition is organized in conjunction with A Joy Forever: Marie Webster Quilts, on display in the Gerald	1 and Dorit Paul galleries from March 3, 2016 through January? 2017.
					Artists are invited to submit work that responds to the early 20th century quilts made by Indiana native, Marie Daugherty Webster (1859-1956). They are required to select either a single Webster quilt or use a group of them as sources of inspiration.
					The artists are further encouraged to create quilts that are relevant to the times we live in, and are reflective of the circumstances we live in the early 21st century.
					This juried exhibition is open to SAQA (Studio Art Quilt Associates) members from Indiana, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Iowa, Minnesota, and Gallery, will include about seven quilts from the IMA's permanent collection augmented with about four loans from the Indiana State Museum.

					Crazy quilts, made by women as a leisurely pursuit and used as decorative parlor throws, were extremely popular throughout the United States in the 1880s and 1890s. The crazy quilt fad emerged as a response to the Japanese-influenced Aesthetic movement, which embraced asymmetry and bold colors and made the structured patterns of traditional quilts seem outdated. Crazy quilts were patched using irregular pieces of fabrics without a specific design, and the seams were embroidered in a variety of decorative techniques and styles. Motifs, including flowers, animals, figures, fans, moons and stars, and other symbols were embroidered or painted to further personalize the quilts and even memorialize people or events. The quilts incorporated a wide range of "fancy" fabrics, including silks, velvets, wool, printed cottons, scraps from clothes with sentimental meaning, and commemorative ribbons. Noteworthy quilts in the exhibition feature portraits printed on fabric, possibly to commemorate loved ones.
					The exhibition will trace the brief history of this unique style of quilt in the context of the period's increasing industrialization-when elaborate fabrics were more widely

					This is our own version of the project done by Nelson Atkins, "500 Portraits in 5 Days" where they set up a portable studio inside the museum. We will shoot close to 500 portraits over seveal days at various locations around the city while capturing people's information to help build our email list. We will then be inviting those individuals who participated to the opening of the exhibition. The end result will be an exhibition of blown up images of the portraits. This project has the potential to bring up to 500 new people as well as their friends and families to the museum (i.e. build our email lists, and help build Bird Watching combines a variety of natural settings with carefully placed craft store songbirds to create enhanced landscapes. On walks to the woods, McCartney would stop to look at birds, but didn't attempt to document them.

				They were always too far away, moving too quickly and never landed in the appropriate composition. She then decided to take control and bought her own birds to create the idealized scenes of her fantasies, where songbirds perched patiently on trees as she photographed them. The resulting photographs explore the idea of constructed landscapes and intrinsic value of natural vs. fabricated experiences. In McCartney's work the birds act as decoration, making the landscapes more interesting, but ultimately presenting false representations of the

EX2017.9 Completed	The Birds of Céleste Boursier-Mougenot: A Film by Ariane Michel.	Artist and composer Céleste Boursier-Mougenot works across disciplines and media to produce large-scale, immersive sound installations. His use of everyday obj within these environments results in non-traditional compositions defined by chance encounters and comp acoustic patterns. This exhibition features a video of Boursier-Mougenot's ongoing project, from here to ea (1999-ongoing). Filmed by artist Ariane Michel in collaboration with Boursier-Mougenot, the video documents the artist's transformation of a gallery spacinto an aviary furnished with electric Gibson guitars, basses, and amplifiers. Throughout, zebra finches pen peck, and pluck on various instruments and musical equipment to create a living and improvisational soundscape.	ects ex	Tricia Paik
